Welcome back

I apologize I haven't posted for so long. I'm not going into the details but my family suffered a profound loss several weeks ago. We were dealing with our grief and focused on supporting each other. This is true to my belief in life balance - believe it or not some things are more important than business!

This was compounded by a previously scheduled vacation-a full week without phone, internet, or email. While this added another week without a post it was a timely break. The time off gave us a chance to clear our heads and think. We gave a lot of thought to our lives and the direction we were taking.

One area that we will be changing is Wealth and Wisdom. Don't worry, we won't be shutting down or changing our focus. We'll just be giving this blog-and the underlying business-more attention. You-our loyal readers-deserve no less.
